Memorandum on the probable amount of rain and snow in northwest India in January, February and March 1947.

It is possible in some years to form a rough estimate of the probable amount of winter precipitation in north-west India during January to March from certain antecedent atmospheric conditions in different parts of the globe. The factors which act as guides in this matter are, in the order of decreasing reliability, the following :—

- (i) December rain in the western region comprising Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and Iran.
- (ii) Mean pressure in December in South America.

(iii) December rain at Port Blair.

(iv) The westerly component of the upper winds at Agra at a height of 3 to 5 miles, (September second half and October first half).

Information regarding item (iii) has not been available from 1942 and hence the following inferences are based on a formula with the other three factors only.

2. Division "North-west India".

In this memorandum northwest India is taken to consist of the western Himalayas, the United Provinces, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Sind, Rajputana and Gujarat. In as much, however, as the rainfall in March in the United Provinces is said to be prejudicial rather than favourable to the crops, this rainfall is not taken into consideration.

3. Data.

The relevant data for the present season are :—

(i) The conditions in Iran and north-west India.—The total rainfall in Iran, Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province and Kashmir was in slight defect in December. Snowfall in the western Himalayas in December was slightly above normal.

(ii) South American Pressure.—Pressure was 0.8 mm. below normal in December.

(iii) The high-level winds over northern India.—The westerly component of the upper winds was very weak at Agra.

4. Conclusion.

Of the above factors, western rain is slightly unfavourable and the remaining two factors are very unfavourable.

This year all the three factors are unfavourable and indicate that the winter rainfall and snowfall (combined) in northwest India for the period January to March 1947 will be below average.

Offg. Director General of Observatories.
